NOTES:

- 1) All interval measurements are made from the midpoints (half amplitude) on all edges.
- 2) If only one of the two fields is being encoded, the other field shall not be altered.
- 3) If both fields are to be encoded, each field shall be encoded within the tolerances specified in table 1. The transmission channel between the encoder output and the decoder input shall not change the difference in the amplitudes of corresponding signal parameters between the two fields by more than 5 IRE.
- 4) Deviations introduced anywhere in the signal due to source generated switching transients shall be no greater than ± 2 IRE. However, decoders should accept larger deviations which may be introduced by passing the signal through a transmission channel and/or signal security system.
